Berksbire, Mass .--- Western Railrond, &c. Correspondence of The Tribune. PITTSFIELD, Mass., August 7, 1841.

Mr. Greeley: The same unprecedented dry weather still moving. The cars of the Western Rail-road made their first up to the summit (10 miles east,) on Wednesday. The sum-Two years have already been spent in drilling and blasting, and another season will elapse ere it is completed. The rock which they are working is blue flint stone—the excavation exunds about one-half a mile and from 40 to 60 feet in depth. Some idea of its hardness may be formed from the fact that drill, carried by horse power, which ordinarily drills 50 bet a day in lime stone, drills in this only 12 or 15. It is will Lockport, N. Y., so well known. The excavation has been attended with a considerable number of serious acsidents, the workmen are exposed. The manufacturers and woolprowers in this County manifest a deep interest in regard to National Bank. Give us a Bank and a Protective Tariff, and then we can compete with English manufacturers. You will are seen by the papers from this quarter that all the persons trested at Bayou Sara have been discharged. It is yet beexed, perhaps with good reason, that some sort of a rising was contemplated among the negroes upon a few plantations; ist the scheme, if there was any, was nipped in the bud .-The planters were not disposed, probably, to sacrifice many roes at the rate of a thousand dollars each. In trade there is no great change to notice. The stock of totton on hand is very small, and holders are pretty firm tace the late favorable advices from England. The sales ing the past week have been less than one thousand bales, "the old rates. A few bales of new cotton have come in Mississippi, where they have already commenced pick-₹ on many plantations. In this State the crop is not so far atranced.

The health of the city is still good; not a single case of Mew fever has been reported by the Board of Health .-The report of the Board for the week ending last Saturday, stibits a considerable improvement upon the preceding Thope we shall 'steer clear' of the epidemic, but burned; but her injuries are not likely to be fatal. ker we shall not. Let us enumerate some of the advantages of the plan: 1. Manual labor Seminaries can be built without cost This has been made sufficiently plain.

9. Young persons without pecupiary privileges can acquire a sound, thorough, practical, scientific education, with a knowledge of business, and be independent.

3. A republican spirit is promoted. Our aged patriots are lementing the growing spirit of the times, when labor is a badge of disgrace. False notions of dignity drive young men to crowded professions to escape labor, and make them servile office-beggars. Who achieved our independence?-Men bred to business. Who have been, and are, the purest patriots?—Men who have been educated in practical schools.

Morals are improved. Whence the alarming increamit section, as it is called, is the most difficult and expensive of forgeries, counterfeiting—the lawless spirit of sgrarianism?

Let '10,000 applicants' for office, bred without industry, be disappointed, and human nature must be different from what it is if some of them are not strongly tempted to seek to preserve appearances of respectability or means of subsistence by improper measures. Were all acquainted with mechan-ical business, their merits would not be unrewarded. The growing West invites active, practical men, and promises a

At a partial view, one might be led to suppose that a few of these engines would supply the whole country with nails; but when we reflect that it has been estimated that about 300,000 tens of nails (independent of spikes) are made, and annually consumed in the United States, then do we begin to appreciate the vast importance of these improvements, the advantages of which we believe will be secured by every cautious manufacturer throughout the country.

We understand that the Nail Company, having been thu far engaged in building engines for their European interests, where they have secured patents, are now prepared to dispose of territorial rights, together with machines, throughout the United States, upon the most liberal terms; such as may enable the purchaser to clear, in one year's actual operation, the cost of both patent and machines.
